

We have learnt this term what a biography is and how to plan and write one.

We would now like you to choose a person who inspires you, this could be Mo Farrah if you like to keep fit or Andy Murray if you love playing tennis. Spend time researching this person, making notes about their life.

Please use the planning frame below to plan your ideas.

Remember:

- your biography needs to be written in the third person
- include information in chronological order
- include details about their early life, their family and their early career
- write about any people or events that inspired them to follow their main career
- write about their main career (this is the major part of the biography)
- then summarise, saying why you chose this person
- include paragraphs and also elaborate on the basic facts to make it interesting to read

Planning Frame – Biography

Introduction (including opening question and summary of their life)

Events in chronological order

Early Life and Family

Early Career

What they are famous for and why are they so inspirational?

Ending – summarise their life and career and why you have chosen this person.