

Homophone Test 1

1. After the long journey, the train was now completely _____ and everyone started to disembark.
2. Miranda has a large collection of Smiggle _____, including; a pencil case, a rubber and pen.
3. One of the Ten Commandments tells us that we should not _____ from others.
4. Many of the largest bridges in the world are made out of a special metal alloy; _____.
5. The children were _____ of their new teacher; it wasn't normal to have that much hair coming out of their ears.
6. By now, the travellers were feeling _____ from the long journey.
7. The _____ of the world hung in the balance as the President stepped forwards to speak to the alien race.
8. The village _____ starts at 2:15pm and will continue until the sun has set.
9. The hotel hadn't received a _____ in years; now thirty turned up at once.
10. "I should have _____ it would have been one of you lot," muttered the old lady under her breath.
11. I would love a _____ after this Sunday roast dinner.
12. The _____ sweltered in the midday heat.
13. As the room slowly became warmer, a _____ could still be felt by the window.
14. The publisher looked full of anticipation as I handed him my first _____.
15. Let me calculate the _____ I will make if I sell them at that cost.
16. Moses was the greatest of Old Testament _____.

Homophone Test 1

1. After the long journey, the train was now completely stationary and everyone started to disembark.
2. Miranda has a large collection of Smiggle stationery, including; a pencil case, a rubber and pen.
3. One of the Ten Commandments tells us that we should not steal from others.
4. Many of the largest bridges in the world are made out of a special metal alloy; steel.
5. The children were wary of their new teacher; it wasn't normal to have that much hair coming out of their ears.
6. By now, the travellers were feeling weary from the long journey.
7. The fate of the world hung in the balance as the President stepped forwards to speak to the alien race.
8. The village fete starts at 2:15pm and will continue until the sun has set.
9. The hotel hadn't received a guest in years; now thirty turned up at once.
10. "I should have guessed it would have been one of you lot," muttered the old lady under her breath.
11. I would love a dessert after this Sunday roast dinner.
12. The desert sweltered in the midday heat.
13. As the room slowly became warmer, a draught could still be felt by the window.
14. The publisher looked full of anticipation as I handed him my first draft.
15. Let me calculate the profit I will make if I sell them at that cost.
16. Moses was the greatest of Old Testament prophets.